

My Sister, Janice Joy

*There once was a big sister
Born to the Dregers, Mrs. and Mr.
Their pride glowed bright and shiny
To welcome their angel, sweet and tiny!*

*She fulfilled all their dreams
As babies always do, it seems
A daughter is so special, in so many, many ways
Even though the long nights weren't as good as the days!*

*But as time slipped by very quickly
She blossomed into a toddler, with never being sickly.
And alas, this precious daughter is visited by who?
A new baby sister, and then there were two!*

*The memories of childhood with two little girls
Are lacy frills and bows in lots of little curls.
But little girls growing up can be a hearty hand full,
Making Mom and Daddy's life challenges anything but dull!*

*But this little sister knows
Big sisters will change as time comes and goes,
Most will try to lose the tag-a-long,
That "shadow" I became, was it right or wrong?*

*My Idol, she became as we grew up to see
What life could bring for us...for her and then for me.
She never did get harsh, for I was always there.
I tried to copy her and followed her everywhere!*

*And now that we are grown up, it seems she never tires,
She still will always be there to help with my desires,
A better sister never could I find on all the earth,
A Million Dollars Plus, or Priceless is her Worth!!*
